Inhalt / Content	"Microsoft Excel is for greenhorns and raw beginners only!?" While it is true that scientists usually rely on high-end statistical packages, the bigheaded ignorance of Excel belittles the method repertoire of social and natural scientists. The workshop demonstrates the potential of Excel 2010 as an underrated but mighty scientific tool for data pre- and post-processing, analysis and reporting. Participants are invited to provide own questions or potential applications beforehand, so that the examples can be addressed during the workshop. Previous experience with Excel is not mandatory.
